

GWP.2016

Call for Papers – Call for Symposia

Second International Conference of the German Society for Philosophy of Science

„Philosophy of Science Between the Natural Sciences, the Social Sciences, and the Humanities“

University of Düsseldorf, Germany
March 8–11, 2016

Since 2013, the German Society for Philosophy of Science (Gesellschaft für Wissenschaftsphilosophie – GWP) organizes triennial international conferences in philosophy of science. The second international conference, GWP.2016, will be held at the Heinrich Heine University of Düsseldorf.

Invited plenary speakers are:

Rainer Hegselmann (Bayreuth)
Paul Hoyningen-Huene (Hannover)
Michela Massimi (Edinburgh)
Stathis Psillos (Athens)
Alexander Rosenberg (Durham)
Gila Sher (San Diego)

The GWP invites contributions devoted to all fields of the philosophy of science. We welcome proposals for individual papers (30 min plus 15 min discussion) or symposia (3 speakers in a total 2-hour session). Graduate students are especially encouraged to submit proposals for either individual papers or symposia. All submissions will be subjected to a blind refereeing procedure. Proposals for papers should include the title and abstract (up to 500 words), symposia proposals should include the symposium title, a description of the symposium's rationale (up to 500 words) and for each of the 3 speakers the title and abstract (up to 500 words). The conference language is English, but German contributions will also be considered.

For submission via EasyChair and technical details see the call for papers and symposia at: www.wissphil.de/gwp2016

The deadline for all submissions is 27. September 2015. Expected notification of acceptance by the beginning of December.

Local organizers: G. Schurz (Chair), A. Christian, C. Feldbacher, A. Gebharder, D. Hommen, N. Retzlaff, P. Thorn

GWP organizers: U. Feest, U. Krohs, H. Lyre, T. Reydon